City Budget

Manager Recommends 2% Increase In City's Public Safety Budget

by Diane Oberg

The Public Safety budget accounts for over one third of the city's operating budget. For the fiscal year beginning on July 1, City Manager Daniel Hobbs proposes spending $4.77 million on public safety, $4.577 million on police, $49,700 on traffic control (line painting, etc.), $61,200 on animal control and $53,200 towards a reserve for equipment for the Greenbelt Fire Department and Rescue Squad.

This allocation represents a 2.0 percent increase over the budget approved for the current fiscal year. (Actual expenditures for the current year are estimated to total roughly 2.0 percent less than the budgeted amount.)

At an April 17 worksession, members of the City Council, the Greenbelt Lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), and city staff discussed Hobbs' proposed budget, several requests from the FOP and the department's "unmet needs."

In addition, council briefly discussed a staff proposal to significantly increase the fines for violations of the city's animal control regulations. This proposal will be discussed further at a future worksession.

As with most city departments, the proposed police budget includes few increases over past years. No additional officers were proposed, the number of police cars to be purchased was cut from the scheduled ten down to six, overtime is down slightly from the current year's budget (and up slightly over estimated current year expenditures), and two currently vacant positions (dispatcher and police cadet) are proposed to be eliminated. Among the factors increasing costs is that the city now has to pick up the full salary and benefits costs of two of the three officers hired under past grants. Hobbs noted that he originally wanted to cut overtime costs much harder, but the department's analysis of how the overtime was used convinced him that his original proposal was unrealistic.

In addition to the unmet needs in the budget document (for the police all were items cut by Hobbs to balance the budget), Police Chief James Craze said that he had "a page and a half" of unmet needs, including a videotaping system for the lockup cells. He promised to provide council with a list of these items.

Pluses and Minuses

There is good news on the revenue front. The General Assembly increased the per capita support for police protection and eliminated the county's role in passing through other grant funds (so that the county could not eliminate or change the distribution formula for the funds). As a result, City Treasurer Michael McLaughlin reported that grant revenues should be $44,400 higher than shown in the budget.

However, council seeks to fund additional expenditures as well. Windsor Green has agreed to provide space for a police substation in Greenbelt East. The police department estimates that $3,600 will be required to equip and operate the substation during the first year. Councilmember Edward Putens proposed adding a second School Resource Officer to support the Eleanor Roosevelt officer and to serve the other schools in the city. The estimated cost of an additional officer is $77,000 (includes equipment).

Hobbs had also proposed to freeze the "residency bonus" plan for officers at the current level. This bonus, which was introduced to encourage officers to live in the city, was to have risen from the current $100/year to $200. This was a cut he did not want to make, Hobbs said, but he needed the

Deadline Nears to File For GHI Elected Offices

Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) needs a few good men and women to do the yeoman's work of GHI: serve on the board and the audit and nominations & elections committees. No candidates have yet filed to run for the board of directors or audit committee. Time is running out to do so, for the deadline to file is Saturday, May 11, at 5 p.m. Three of the four incumbents on the board of directors are not running again: Don Comis, Carole Levin, and Terry Rutledge.

Certainly the election of 1996 is not shaping up to be like the hotly contested elections of yore.

Needed are: four people to serve on the Board of Directors, the "governing" body of GHI; three people for audit committee, the oversight committee of GHI; and people to serve on the Nominations and Elections Committee.

How to run for the board or a committee? Get a candidate consent form from Joan Krob (Director of Member Relations) at the GHI office or any member of the Nominations and Elections Committee (Andrew Levin, chair 345-2032, Charles Braun 441-8653, Julia Eichhorst 345-5508, Judy Goldstein 474-9203, Shelia Alpers 345-8265). The forms must be filed with Krob or Don Comis (the Secretary of GHI) by Saturday, May 11, at 5 p.m.

Voting will take place immediately upon recess of the annual meeting (May 18 at the Greenbelt Community Center) and from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday, May 19, in the Senior Center room on the first floor of the Greenbelt Community Center.

Greenbelt's Anh-Thu Nguyen Wins Youth Citizen Award

by Dorothy Sucher

"It was a hard time, a time of sorrow," says 18-year-old Anh-Thu Thi Nguyen of Springhill Lake, speaking of her childhood years in Vietnam after the fall of Saigon. Her father languished in jail for 9 years as a political prisoner because he had helped the Americans. Her handicapped mother struggled, day by day, to keep six children alive with such help as relatives could spare. Anh-Thu, the next-to-youngest child, was 13 when the reunited family finally managed to emigrate to America, with $50 in their pockets and the clothes they wore.

Now, five years later, Anh-Thu has received the $700 Youth Citizenship Award from Soroptimist International of Bowie-Crofton, a service organization for executive and professional women. This honor is given annually for outstanding contributions made by graduating high school seniors for their contributions to their homes, schools, communities, and country—in Anh-Thu's case her new country, America.

Where does she find the energy, the strength, to do all she does, one wonders? She maintains a 3.85 grade point average at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, which she has attended for the last two years. She has worked with Students Helping Other People and is vice-president of a club that collects and delivers food to the homeless, she checks her 8-year-brother's homework every night and takes an active and responsible role in her church, she serves as interpreter for her parents, who speak little English, and once a week she delivers the Greenbelt News Review. Last Saturday she spent the day in Hyattsville, cleaning yards and doing housepainting for elderly people as part of the "Christmas in April" project of the National Honor Society.

She tells me she wants to "give thanks to my parents for bringing me to this country. And I want to thank Shirley Zachary, my ESOL (English as a Second Language) teacher, who has helped me a lot."

First Helped, Now Helper

"When we first came here we had help from other people," she says. "Lutheran groups sponsored political prisoners who wanted to emigrate. Now I want to help others. Sometimes it's stressful. I have a lot of college applications to fill out, and I'm applying for financial aid. My parents can't help, they don't speak English. I have to do it all myself. I don't really have time to write all those essays, so I've missed some deadlines."

She aspires to go to college—

the Baltimore Campus of the University of Maryland. "It's small, and it has a diverse population. I want to meet different people, exchange ideas, learn from them." Engineering and education are the focus of her ambitions; she says she has always wanted to be a teacher.

Learning, Helping, Teaching

Learning, helping, and teaching; these are themes that recur when she talks. She likes Eleanor Roosevelt High School, where she is now in her senior year, because of the "challenge courses, where good students work together to help each other—and not just ourselves but also the community."

Eleanor Roosevelt herself is a role model—"she helped kids in school and did things for other people"—as is Hillary Rodham Clinton. "I like to read things about her. Some people say negative things, but I think she deserves all the good things she has, because she's been trying real hard."

Trying real hard is something Anh-Thu Thi Nguyen knows all about: Trying real hard has grown into her bones.

Letters to the Editor

No Aesthetic Appeal

This comments on the Advisory Planning Board's recommendations for renovating Cherrywood Lane. Cherrywood is 10 feet wider than US Route 1 through north College Park. In theory, Cherrywood could carry more traffic, faster.

Cherrywood carries between 6,000 and 8,000 vehicles per day according to city staff. In contrast, US 1 averages 56,000 vehicles per day. Does Greenbelt need or want that much traffic capacity on a neighborhood street like Cherrywood Lane?

Crescent Road comfortably carries 10,500 vehicles per day with only two lanes. It also retains its aesthetic qualities. Cherrywood, which is almost twice as wide as Crescent, has the aesthetic appeal of an airport landing strip. It is much too wide for pedestrians to cross comfortably without a pedestrian refuge island.

A much wider than necessary road encourages excessive speeds. Speeding diminishes the safety of all road users. Excess capacity encourages inappropriate uses, such as the storage of truck bodies in the southbound curb lanes. It may encourage overdevelopment.

Even the State Highway Administration now recognizes the need to make roads people friendly. US 1 in North Brentwood is currently being renovated to enhance its appearance and add amenities. The paved width is being narrowed to provide room for sidewalks, pedestrian refuge islands, landscaping and 4 foot bike lanes. The unsightly shoulder area that was used for truck parking has been eliminated.

I hope the Greenbelt City Council notices how much better the renovated portion of US 1 looks and functions and that it resolves to add similar amenities to Cherrywood Lane. The quality of life for those of us who use Cherrywood Lane depends on it.

Neighborhood Bike Rodeo

The Greenbelt Recreation Department and Greenbelt Police Department have joined forces to present a free Neighborhood Bike Rodeo series, coming soon to a nearby neighborhood. The rodeos will be held Saturday, May 4, at Schrom Hills Park, Saturday, May 11, at the Greenbelt Middle School and Saturday, May 18, at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. All will be held at 10:30 a.m. The events will feature a demo by the Greenbelt Bicycle Patrol, information on new helmet laws, a review of riding skills and bicycle safety inspections. There will also be the opportunity to register a bike with the police department, a goodie bag with lots of take home information for moms, dads and kids plus free water bottles and the chance to win a bike helmet. For additional information contact 397-2200.

GIVES Says Thank You

We would like to send special thanks to the members of the Crafts/Social Group for the splendid Needle Arts Show and Springtime Tea which they organized for the benefit of GIVES on Sunday, April 28. The event was Betty Deitch's idea, and she coordinated a delightful afternoon. Among her many hard workers were Phyllis Budin, Karen Haseley, Brenda Kosisky, Leonie Penney, Irving and Pearl Siegel, and Arlene and Bill Souser. Also thanks to the Community Center staff members who assisted with the set-up, the News Review and Greenbelt Cable Channel B 10, which recorded the successful result, and the general public, who supported this fund raiser.

Sufficient funds were raised to launch a monthly newsletter in time for the Second Annual meeting on June 1. An increasing number of elderly seniors and the disabled will be able to live independently longer with the services provided by GIVES volunteers. Once again, Greenbelters have proven that Greenbelt is great!

Janet Parker, Chair

Beautiful Plantings

My family and I wish to note our appreciation for the beautiful plantings in Schrom Hills Park this spring and to encourage others to visit while the flowers are at their best. We have been in the Park several times over the past few weeks, and I believe that the beauty of the Park compares very favorably with any of Washington's more well-known gardens. In particular, the colors in the area of the allee are so carefully chosen that it is difficult to imagine a better combination than the pink and white dogwoods, the lavender thrift, the pale yellow daffodils, and the silver pink tulips. Many thanks to the City's Horticulture staff and others who have made this part of our city such a beautiful place!

OBITUARIES

Norman McCarthy

Longtime Greenbelter Norman McCarthy, 60, died unexpectedly on Wednesday, April 24. He had diabetes. The longtime managing editor for the Catholic Standard, Mr. McCarthy was known in Greenbelt for his equally long association with the Little League and, more recently, the St. Hugh's Knights of Columbus.

Mr. McCarthy was born in Washington, D.C. and spent his youth there and in New York. He served in the Marine Corps in Lebanon, Greece and Turkey during the 1950s.

After working a few years for the Washington Post, he joined the staff of the Catholic Standard, retiring in 1995.

Baseball was the great love of his life. He pitched for his high school team, played in the minor leagues briefly and spent half his life involved with the youth of Greenbelt in the Little League. He managed the Indians for more than 20 years. His team won the world series the year his son Danny played. He then served as commissioner and umpired for several years. He was secretary of the board through all those years. "Norman really loved baseball," said Martin Murray. "He loved to go to Baltimore and watch the Orioles play." Murray met McCarthy through the Little League. They became good friends. "We shot pool once a week for 15 years," Murray prepared a few lines about McCarthy which were read at last Sunday's Opening Day, as the Little Leaguers paused for a moment to honor their friend. He had touched the lives of many.

Hank Irving recalls the city honored Mr. McCarthy in 1976 with its highest award "volunteer of the year" for meritorious service to the youth of Greenbelt.

A longtime member of St. Hugh's Catholic church, Mr. McCarthy was a founding member of the St. Hugh Knights of Columbus several years ago. "He was a down to earth kind of person," said Irving. "He did much to reach out to those less fortunate than himself."

Mr. McCarthy is survived by his wife JoAnn; three daughters, Colleen Hensel, Chris Harrington, Kelly Metzger and a son, Dan, of Greenbelt; and one grandson.

"Burial was on St. George's Island in St. Mary's County. Mr. McCarthy received a military salute in the old cemetery with a small chapel under beautiful old trees," said Murray. "He had a summer home there that he loved." As a reporter and editor Mr. McCarthy wrote about the history and people of Southern Maryland.

A Man and His Priorities

(Reprinted with permission from the Catholic Standard)

By Tom Rowan

Shortly after I was appointed managing editor of the Catholic Standard back in 1961, I hired a young reporter. He was a skinny young man about 25 years old with jet-black hair, a diffident, low-key manner. His name was Norman McCarthy, a resume and clippings don't guarantee a reporter's ability, so I was delighted to discover that Norman was not only a fine reporter—fast, accurate and readable—but he was also a fine person. He died last week, and I will miss him as will countless others. We were friends for more than three decades.

Everybody liked Norman because there was nothing about Norman to dislike. He was generous beyond belief, he was kind, he was smart, he was humorous, and he was fun to be around. Above all—absolutely above all—he was a devoted family man. He doted on his family. He seemed perpetually astonished that God had given him the privilege of being a husband and father. He was proud beyond measure of his four children.

Not that he was effusive. Of course, while the children were growing up, and even after they reached adulthood, his desk and wallet were crammed with pictures of them. But the facade he put on—one that everybody saw through—was that of a beleaguered and much put-upon male totally and helplessly at the mercy of a houseful of females, namely, his mother, wife and three daughters. (His one son apparently was judged on a different level; it's a guy thing.)

Norman had countless stories about his children, and in most cases portrayed himself as the victim. One I remember took place when he was coaching a CYO girls' basketball team. His daughter was a member of the team although charity restrains me from specifying which daughter. A sports enthusiast, Norman took his coaching duties seriously. As he told the story, he called his daughter off the bench to go in and play. As she passed him on her way toward the court, he said her one question to him was not about basketball tactics or strategy. Oh no, instead, he said her question was "Does my hair look all right?" Life as a CYO coach was not a bowl of cherries, Norman insisted, but he loved it.

In the course of his more than 30-year career at the Catholic Standard Norman wrote a great many excellent stories, including a long wrap-up article describing accurately and specifically, the highlights of Pope John Paul II's 37 talks during his visit to Washington in 1979. But my favorite Catholic Standard story by him is, appropriately a family affair. His daughter Colleen had recently gotten married and I asked him to do a father-of-the-bride article for our annual marriage supplement. The story was, to mince no words, marvelous. Naturally, Norman portrayed himself as the hapless and harried victim of a platoon of determined females. The story was warm hearted, touching and hilarious. Writing skill which Norman had in abundance, couldn't pull off a story like that. What made it special was that it radiated a father's love. He wrote the same kind of story, just as effectively, when his other daughters married.

Norman had his priorities: God, family, Church, country, Southern Maryland, the Marine Corps, baseball and anything Irish. And he had a the Irishman's love of storytelling and playfulness with words. As I passed his desk one morning, he asked, "What's green and white and Irish and stays out all night?"

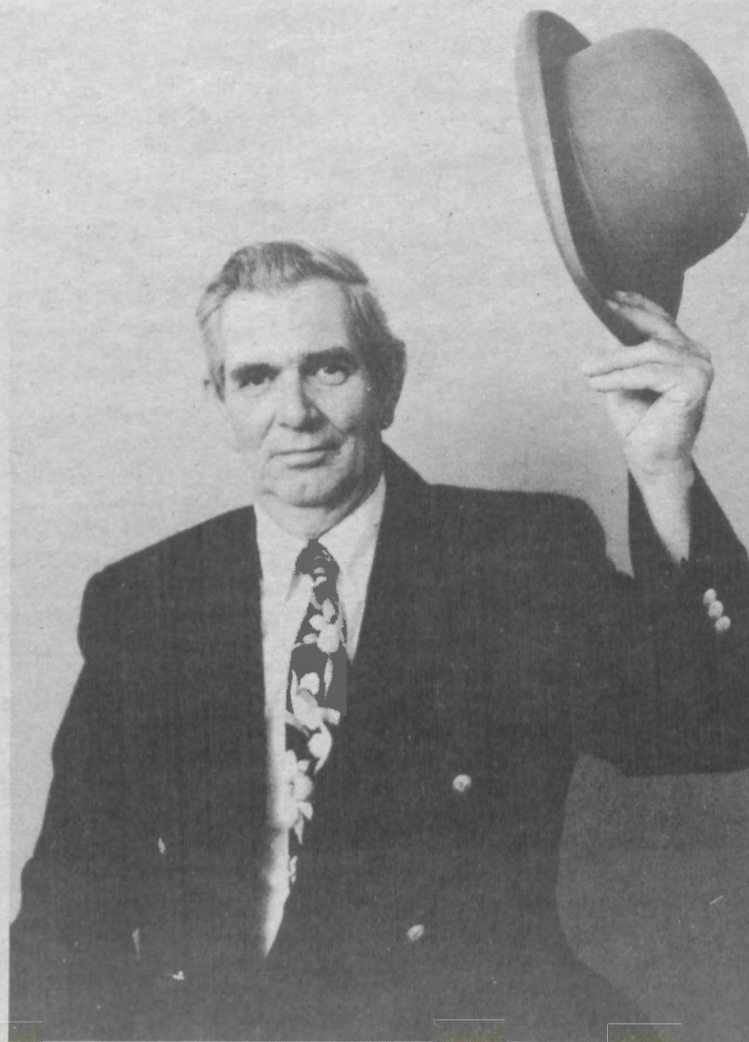

"I don't know."

"Paddy O'Furniture."

"Thank you for sharing that with me, Norman."

He became an expert on Southern Maryland, and I learned to rely on his expertise. He knew and loved the region's history, geography, topography, folklore and people. It was his favorite place in the world, and he was buried there on Saturday, in St. Francis Xavier Cemetery on St. George's Island. His fondest wish—his longtime plan—was to retire to Southern Maryland and enjoy its wonders fulltime. That was not to be. God's plan and our plan are not necessarily the same, as God reminds us regularly. God had other plans for Norman.

When someone close to us dies, we grieve not for that person, but for ourselves because he is taken from us and we will miss him. So it is with Norman. In recent years his health deteriorated, he had diabetes, his eyesight was impaired, he had a multitude of ailments that restricted his activities. But the faith that sustain us—and sustained him is it difficult to picture Norman filled with indescribable joy as he waits for us in the place God set aside for him, a place even more wonderful than Southern Maryland.

Tom Rowan is the retired editor of the Catholic Standard.

through many a crisis—comforts us with the expectation that the life he now enjoys is, at long last, free of pain, free of infirmity.

Norman was full of life and humor, and he would not want us to be sad. His struggle is over. It's not hard to picture him having lengthy conversations with the saints, especially the Irish saints, both about the tribulations of being a hapless male in a female enclave and about his absolutely marvelous family, on whom he doted. Earth Day in Greenbelt Fun for Kids of All Ages

by Mary Moien

Greenbelt celebrated Earth Day at Schrom Hills Park on April 27. Activities included a yard sale, demonstrations and crafts by the Girl Scouts, a petting zoo from "Zoo Show" in Baltimore, and games and activities made from recycled activities. The mayor and city council members capped the day with the planting of a hawthorn tree. In addition, the University of Maryland Men's Soccer Team and the Greenbelt Lions undertook a clean-up project for Earth Day.

The Zoo Show was a real draw for both the younger and the more mature of the Greenbelters. It is hard to resist baby lambs, goats, and pigs. It might be harder to resist a reptile that looked like a baby alligator. Hands were reaching to pet the large terrapin, not a turtle, please. According to "Jungle Jen" of the Zoo Show, they are an educational organization that helps children learn about animals.

Among the exhibitors was the Greenbelt Nursery School and Kindergarten showing how to make toys from used bleach bottles and rolled up socks or even squished up papers. Pat Schreiber indicated that this game of catch is easier for young children because the papers and socks do not go as fast or as hard as a ball. The kids have a chance to react and catch the "ball". Older kids seemed to be having as much fun as younger with the game. Girl Scout troops 2065 and 2142 had tables with button making and crafts. Troop 3306 from Springhill Lake, under the leadership of Stephanie French, was demonstrating the construction and use of solar ovens. They had plans to make biscuits in the oven.

Kris White, president of the Greenbelt Dog Park Association, was on hand with her friends (greyhounds) Scott and Alex to discuss their hopes for an enclosed dog park and off-leash areas within the city. White described their contributions to the city, including participation in "pets on wheels" which brings pets to visit the ill and nursing home residents.

Mayor Antoinette Bram, Mayor Pro Tem J Davis, and Council Members Ed Putens and Rodney Roberts planted a hawthorn tree near the fitness path. Bram commented that it was a beautiful tree and was planted

City Notes

Dead wood was pruned from three trees on Laurel Hill Road. A tree in Boxwood damaged by high winds was cut and chipped. Twelve trees on Greenbrook Drive damaged by borers were replaced. Mulching at Roosevelt Center, Municipal Building, Community Center and the Library underpass landscape beds was completed. Lawns at the Municipal Building, Police Station, and the front of the Aquatic Center were fertilized. Erosion damage was repaired along the stream at the east entrance of Buddy Attick Park. Greenbelt Middle School and Schrom Hills Park soccer fields were prepared for weekend games. Finishing work was done along the stream by the Greenbelt Fire Station. The roadside swale along Westway was cleaned and resurfaced with asphalt. The Greenbelt Connection van was delivered and is being prepped for use. Seventeen willow oaks were planted around the Community Center parking lot.

under the watchful eye of Bill Phelan, the City Horticulturist. Bram also remarked on the beautiful alle, a path with seating and plantings that is a highlight of the park.

While these activities were ongoing at Schrom Hills Park, the University of Maryland Men's Soccer Team and the Greenbelt Lions Club were celebrating Earth Day by cleaning up areas of old Greenbelt. The two groups picked up trash around the Center, Braden Field and surrounding areas.

Condolences to Joanne McCarthy and family on the recent death of her husband, Norman.

Congratulations to sixth graders Angela Ahnadi and Melissa Ager, who recently saved the life of a 75-year-old man who had collapsed in a Prince George's County restaurant. According to an article in the Washington Post, these cool-headed young women successfully administered CPR to the fallen man, only a few hours after attending a free CPR lesson at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Way to go, girls! What an upbeat, inspiring story!

PUBLIC SAFETY

$12,100 to close the budget shortfall. FOP President John Rogers argued that taking away a promised benefit is not fair. At least two councilmembers voiced support for reinstating the promised bonus.

More Officers

Although not a formal FOP request, Rogers urged council to hire additional officers. He noted that the streets of Greenbelt are becoming more violent and suggested that the city would have a "big problem" within the next year if more officers were not hired.

Mayor Antoinette Bram suggested civilianizing additional positions, as other departments have done, to free up more officers for the street. Hobbs expects that increased automation, being phased in over the next two years, will significantly reduce the paperwork burden on officers, allowing them to spend more time on the street.

Councilmember Judith Davis told Rogers that while "we'd all ...like more officers," it's an issue of priorities. While not disagreeing, Bram noted that relative to many other communities, Greenbelt has a relatively high ratio of officers to population.

Leave Pool

The FOP presented three specific proposals to council—for a change in the deferred compensation program, creation of an "FOP leave pool," and establishment of a "master patrol officer" rank. Probably the most likely to be approved by council is the leave pool request. Currently, members of the FOP's board must use their own annual leave to handle FOP business during their working shifts. The lodge's by-laws have long had a provision that members must contribute leave to the pool. The lodge is now seeking council approval for implementing the pool with a yearly contribution of four hours per officer.

Most of the councilmembers voiced support for the proposal, although Mayor Antoinette Bram sought some assurances from FOP President John Rogers that all lodge members agreed to the proposal.

Hobbs expressed some concern that the program could be seen as a city subsidy of FOP activities. This concerned him, he said, if officers were to use pool leave for purposes "inimical to the city's interests," such as lobbying for a bill that the city opposed. He suggested specifying what activities the leave could be used for. However, Rogers pointed out that officers are not required to specify what they plan to do while on annual leave. While the councilmembers asked to see "examples" of what the leave might be used for, they appeared less interested than Hobbs in creating an approved list of activities.

Another issue was whether the program would cost the city anything. The FOP argued that since it is simply redistributing leave already earned by officers, there should be little or no cost to the city. Hobbs was not so sure. He believed that the pool would increase the need for overtime. Rogers said that supervisors would have the ability to turn down this leave to avoid overtime in the same manner as they do for any other annual leave request.

Deferred Compensation

Rogers also asked for a change in the city's deferred compensation program. Currently, three different retirement systems cover city employees. Police officers are covered by the McLeo program, which allows them to retire after 25 years of service. Long-time city employees are covered by the "Retirement System," while newer employees are covered by the "Pension System." All three programs are run by the state government, which determines benefits and contributions.

In FY92, in response to the complaints of employees in the Pension System that they received a much smaller benefit than other employees, the city phased in a 5% city contribution to the Pension Plan employees' deferred contribution accounts, in addition to the city match of the employees' contributions (up to 5%). For employees who participate in the deferred compensation program, the total cost to the city for basic pension, city match, and city contribution (Pension program only) totals 21.3% of salary to McLeo employees' retirement benefits, 14.7% for Pension Plan employees and 26.1% for Retirement Plan employees.

The FOP is asking council to make a comparable 5% contribution to police officers' deferred compensation accounts, "due to the disproportionate amount of funds being distributed to the employees of the city..." Rogers told the News Review that the shorter period that police officers have to make contributions (since they can retire after 25 years of service instead of 30) already makes "a big difference dollar-wise." The lack of the 5% city contribution (above the match) increases the difference. Rogers noted that a person who stays in for 30 years would already come out with more [from the deferred contributions program] than he'd get in 25. However, the city contribution makes the disparity greater. While he could leave in 25 years, Rogers said, it would not be financially advantageous to do so. Council discussion of this issue ended with Rogers' estimate that the request would cost roughly $100,000.

A second deferred compensation issue has run through several budget worksessions, namely the Mayor's concern that the city, unlike many organizations, bases deferred compensation (and the city match) on "gross pay," including overtime. In many programs, deferred compensation applies only to base pay.

Other Requests

The FOP also requested creation of a new rank, between private first class and corporal in order to create additional promotion opportunities for officers. The councilmembers, however, said that the proposal needs to be developed further before they could consider it. In the future, Rogers expects that the FOP will bring proposals for health insurance for retirees and an improved retirement plan for officers.

Animal Control

Planning and Community Development Director Celia Wilson has proposed increasing the fines for violations of the city's animal control regulations, currently $10 for the first violation, to $25 for nuisance violations (noise, running at large, failure to remove feces) and $250 - $500 for neglect and cruelty. Further, Wilson proposes doubling the fines for second violations and doubling them again for more than two violations.

She also suggested that the city issue a "shadow license." Under this proposal city resi-

A Greenbelt Gardener

by Rosie Rhubarb

The hot days have brought spring weather up to where it should be this time of the month. In response many types of flowers have finally come into bloom. It is one of the most beautiful times of the year. Thoughts may be running towards the summer flower and vegetable garden. It is a good time to finalize the plans, prepare the soil, and buy supplies. But as for planting, remember that the warm weather is not yet here to stay.

There are cool days and nights still to come and maybe even a frost. Since a frost will kill almost all annual plants, once you have planted, watch the weather forecasts so you know if you have to protect your plants.

Plant experts recommend not putting out annual plants till after the average last frost date, (late April for us.) Prudent plant people recommend planting annuals after May 1. After all, the annuals will be part of the garden for many months, so why not plant them in conditions in which they thrive - warm days and nights.

Annual vegetables and flowers can be planted as seeds or as plants in early May. Try seeds for easy to grow varieties and hard to find varieties. Some plants that come up easily from seed directly sown in the garden include: beans, squash, zinnia, cosmos, marigold, basil, morning glory, tithonia, and cleome. The last two are not well known but are very drought tolerant and disease free.

Some annual plants need time and effort to get started. If you have not started them yet you are better off buying as plants: tomato, pepper, salvia, coleus, impatiens, lobelia, and ageratum. Garden centers and other stores offer a good selection of favorites.

Buy healthy plants that will continue to develop strong leaves and stems and thus will produce many flowers for weeks this summer. When choosing a plant look for healthy green leaves. Avoid plants with yellowing and browning leaves, grayish spots, bugs, fuzzy patches or webs. Also avoid plants that have a lot of roots sticking out of the bottom of the pot. This is a sign that the plant is pot bound and has been stressed.

Do not worry about having a lot of flowers on the plants just yet. At this stage you want the plant to put its energy into producing good leaf and root growth. Pinching the flowers off before planting in the ground will direct the plant's efforts to producing a stronger plant.

Needle Arts and Tea A Successful Combo

The First Annual Needle Arts Show and Springtime Tea held in the Community Center on Sunday afternoon April 28 as a benefit for GIVES - the Greenbelt Intergenerational Volunteer Exchange Service - was a resounding success. Outside the sun was shining and the trees were blooming, and inside the refreshments table was set with tempting sweets and flowers were arranged in elegant baskets.

In two rooms, tables were laden with needle work of all varieties, including applique, crochet, cross stitch embroidery, knitting, quilts, and tatting. Contemporary pieces were shown as well as a crib quilt and Sunbonnet bed cover made in 1936. Framed alphabet samplers were among the favorites as were afghans of every color. The afghan donated for the raffle by Bill Souser was won by Alberta Tompkins. Gift certificates from "Stitching Pretty" in Laurel and "Family Crafts" in Seabrook were awarded to Brenda Kosisky and Caroline Karch, respectively.

Adding to the excitement was the presence of photographer Rita Wooddell and videographer David Barnes. The event was sponsored by the Crafts/Social Group which meets weekly in the Community Center. For more information, call Betty Deitch at 474-3152.

Janet Parker, President of GIVES (C.) and Betty Deitch, Show Chairperson (R.) smile while Bill Souser (L.) announces Alberta Tompkins as the winner of his hand-crocheted afghan.

Nursery School Kids Celebrate Earth Day

The slimy-looking mottled gray mixture in the tub begged for attention.

One brave volunteer tentatively poked a finger into the thick, lumpy mass, and announced with surprise that it wasn't slimy at all, only soft and mushy. Immediately ten hands were thrust in to confirm the verdict, swirling and splashing the mush. The Friday before, the children at Mishkan Torah Nursery School had torn newspaper and tissue paper into tiny bits to soak in a dishpan of water over the weekend. The purpose was a mystery.

Now they guessed. Make newspaper soup? Bake it? Mix it with flour to make a modelling dough, as they had done with dryer lint and with crepe paper? On Earth Day Monday, the mush was destined to become something more familiar.

At school and at home, nearly everyone recycles paper. The children's task for Earth Day was to recycle old paper into new paper. To beautify the paper and to remind them of Earth Day, the students picked dandelions to add to the paper pulp. While outside, they also bagged small bits of trash on the playground.

Each group of children poured several cups of pulp into a shallow pan, mixed in dandelion petals and small leaves, dipped a screen under the pulp and water, and slowly lifted the screen to catch a thick layer of pulp. Next they squeezed the pulp between two screens to remove excess water, using hands and a rolling pin. As water splashed across the floor, their clothes soaked up nearly as much water as the paper towel blotters. One more squeeze, and there was a sheet of new, damp, delicate paper ready to peel off the screen and dry in the sun, along with the children. A low-tech operation, but what fine paper they produced, even if thicker, rougher, and more wrinkled than they expected.

When the experts began tearing napkins into little bits to soak in apple juice at snack time, the Mishkan Torah Nursery School Paper Factory was declared closed - come back next Earth Day.

Registration for fall 1996 is now in progress for 2, 3, and 4 year olds. Children of all backgrounds are welcome. For further information, call 474-4224 or 277-8615.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

A woman was the victim of a domestic assault reported in the 400 block of Ridge Road on Monday evening, April 22. The woman was battered by her former boyfriend who had dropped by the residence to return some keys. The woman was treated for scratches to her arms and face. She told officers the suspect carries a handgun under the front seat of his vehicle.

About an hour and a half later, the woman called to report the man had returned to her home. Officers responding stopped the man as he was leaving the area in his vehicle. A search of the vehicle located a loaded 40 caliber handgun. The man was arrested, charged with battery and transporting a handgun in a vehicle, and released on personal recognizance after appearing before a District Court Commissioner.

Two adults and two juveniles were arrested for trespassing in an incident which occurred at Eleanor Roosevelt High School on Friday morning, April 19. The four suspects drove onto school grounds and got involved in a verbal conflict with a student during which one of the suspects implied he had a gun. The suspects fled the scene, but were located a short time later. No gun was found. The two adults, ages 20 and 21, were released on citation pending trial. The two juveniles, ages 14 and 17, were released into a guardian's custody pending juvenile court action.

In a separate incident occurring at ERHS, a 15-year-old resident youth was arrested for trespassing on Tuesday afternoon, April 23. The youth, on long-term suspension from the school, was located on school grounds by the School Resource Officer. The youth was released on citation pending juvenile court action.

A 43-year-old resident man was arrested as a result of a domestic dispute which occurred in the 7500 block of Mandan Road in the early hours of Friday morning, April 26. The man and the victim were in a verbal argument when the man struck the victim in the head and neck with his hand. The man was arrested on the scene and was held on $1,000 bond after appearing before a District Court Commissioner.

A man, described as a white male with white hair and a white beard, attempted to lure a seven year-old-boy into his vehicle on Monday morning, April 22. The incident occurred in the area of Springhill Lake Elementary School. The man left the area after the boy ran back to his mother. The vehicle is described as white with gold trim and a tinted tag cover.

A man sitting in his living room on Monday evening, April 22, heard noises outside his patio door. He saw a man standing on his patio with his hands in the front of his shorts. When the suspect realized he was being observed, he walked away. The man watched the suspect go to another apartment building and look into a lit bedroom window. The suspect was apprehended by a responding officer. The suspect, a 26-year-old resident man, was charged with two counts of trespass-in-vading privacy, and released on citations pending trial.

The Criminal Investigations unit closed a residential burglary which occurred in the 400 block of Ridge Road on April 6. Two male youths, ages 13 and 16, were arrested on Wednesday, April 24, charged with first degree burglary, and released into the custody of a parent pending juvenile court action. Three of the four items reported stolen were recovered.

Highlights of the festival include Kathie and the Hotrods (a 50's-50's show band), the Tricentennial production of "The Magical Mystery History Museum", free pony and train rides, Medrba Steel Band, Rambo, Columbianos Unidos folkloric dancers, Fidos for Freedom, more than 65 members of the Columbia Concert Band, a step show, Hoops, a Boy Scout obstacle course, "Cinderella", the Purple Dinosaur, American Indian "Tanka Tales", and PC - the robotic patrol car.

The public is urged to ride the continuous free shuttle buses which leave from the Route 197 Park and Ride Lot, Towne Center Shopping Center, and Montpelier Plaza (Baby Superstore Plaza) on Route 197 to the festival grounds. Public Parking is limited on site at the Montpelier Drive entrance. Handicapped Parking is available at the Muirkirk Road entrance off Route 197 and at the Park and Ride Lot.

The festival is paid for by the South Laurel Recreation Council volunteers as a free cultural arts gift for the community. The application deadlines for vendors, artists, and crafters have passed. For further information, call the Council at (301) 776-2805.

See Goddard by Bike

The Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition will sponsor a bike ride from Greenbelt to NASA Goddard Space Flight Center via the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) on Saturday, May 4. The ride is the third in a series celebrating Prince George's County's Tricentennial. All area bicyclists are welcome to participate in the ride. In previous weeks, the GBC has led rides to the Greenbelt Museum, College Park Airport, the Bladensburg waterfront, and Riversdale Mansion.

Interested bicyclists should meet at 9:30 a.m. at Roosevelt Center in old Greenbelt. After a ride through BARC, the group will continue on to the Visitor's Center at Goddard. Participants should bring a picnic lunch. The group will return to Greenbelt by 1 p.m. Participation in the ride is free, and there is no admission charge to tour Goddard.

Weather permitting, additional rides in the series will take place every other weekend. The fourth ride in the series will be to the Huntington Railroad Museum and the Belair Mansion and Stable Museums in Bowie on May 18. Riders who participate in all of the rides will visit all sixteen historical sites participating in the county's tricentennial contest. Destinations for future rides include the Laurel Museum and Montpelier Mansion in Laurel, Darnell's Chance and Duvall Tool Museum in Upper Marlboro, Marietta Mansion and Dorsey Chapel in Glenn Dale.

The rides are open to all bicyclists over the age of 12. Riders must wear a helmet. A parent or guardian must sign a permission form for riders under the age of 18, and accompany any riders under 16. Riders should bring their P.G. County "Passports" if they already have one. For more information call Steven Harper at 513-9368.

It only looks like they arrived by plane - 12 Greenbelt bicyclists toured College Park Airport on Saturday April 6, the first in a series of rides through P.G. County sponsored by the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition. Pictured left to right are Alan Turnbull, Diana Garcia, Luc Claessens, Terry Kucera, and Jim Smith.
